SUPERVISION & TEACHING EXPERIENCE

2018 – PRESENT	I am Lab/Tutor helper in the Heriot-Watt University in Mathematics and Computer Science department with several courses
2014 - 2018	I taught the Programming courses at “NUML” University, Islamabad, Pakistan.
2012 - 2012	I externally supervised MSc. Computer Science students of Quaid-i-Azam University, Islamabad, for their final year projects. In this session, I supervised two projects related to semantic web and a Google map related project.
2012 - 2013	I co-supervised MSc. For their final year projects, Computer Science and IT students of Quaid-i-Azam University, Islamabad supervised three projects related to the web application (one for Google maps and one related to digital libraries) were desktop applications of an inventory system of a superstore.
2013 - 2013	I co-supervised MSc. Computer science students for their final year projects. These projects were related to web applications development and deployment. The projects were related to Google maps, semantic web and other related fields.
2013 - 2014	I was also supervising students of FAST University for their data mining semester project. I introduce them to the data mining techniques and algorithms and supervise them to implement those in their semester projects.
2014-2014	Supervising Quaid-i-Azam university students for their final year project related to web development.

 MEMBERSHIPS

Sha'oor The Society: This society was made when Pakistan was shaken by a disastrous earthquake in 2005. Thousands of lives were expired. We, as students, made our team and contributed physically and economically to support those highly affected by the earthquake. Since then, this society has been helping poor people in Pakistan affected by natural disasters like earthquakes, floods, etc. This organisation provides shelter and food. I am one of the founding members of this organisation, and we are still improving it.
